

ROYAL PORCELAIN ON VIEW.

AN EXHIBITION OF THE RARELY SOLD IN THIS COUNTRY.

It comes from the factory which Frederick the Great founded in Germany and which still furnishes china for the Royal Table some rich effects.

An exhibition of porcelain which will in many ways be new to large numbers of people in New York was opened yesterday at the new Macy store. It is in two sections, one in a room arranged in one of the thirty-fourth street showrooms and the other in apartments on one of the upper floors of the building.

The exhibition is a collection of use and ornament from the royal Berlin porcelain factory, comparatively little of this has been seen in this country of late years. The factory, as those who follow such things know, was established in the middle of the eighteenth century by an energetic potter when Frederick the Great took up and by royal patronage made famous.

Frederick brought potters from the Meissen works at Dresden and brought from Aue clay, of which the Dresden men had held the monopoly. Under his direction the Berlin factory grew and became noted. He had the porcelain for his own use made there, and the factory has since made that used by the Prussian rulers. It makes now the porcelain used at the Emperor's palace at Potsdam and the porcelain which the Emperor and Empress give away for presents.

Being under royal or governmental patronage the factory does not have to skim for commercial trade as private manufacturers do, its chief reason for existence being to uphold ceramic art in Germany and to make and foster progress in the art. So there has not been a large distribution of the ware in this country, particularly in late years, although many visitors from the United States to Germany have bought specimens of it.

Nathan Straus recently entered into relations with the German Government and arranged to bring a quantity of the porcelain to this city. The consignment came on the ship "Weser," which arrived at New York on the Kronprinz Wilhelm last Thursday and has spent the intervening time up to yesterday in getting the porcelain into shape for exhibition and sale. Mr. Weissberger is a representative of the German Government.

He has arranged the exhibit, which is practically a part of the Berlin factory, and comprises the same pieces to be found there, in a manner similar to the display of the porcelain in the Berlin factory. The pieces shown is a complete set of dinner service like that ordered by Frederick the Great and used at the Potsdam Palace by the imperial family today. It is decorated in the Louis XV style, and Mr. Weissberger says it is one of the finest things the factory makes.

The factory is famous for its painting and sculpture and its art is famous for the culture of plants and flowers, from which many of its patterns for decoration are taken. The pieces are painted in the colors of the Berlin factory, and there is at least one on exhibit signed by H. Lang, and there are others signed by H. Lang, who is regarded in Germany as the greatest landscape artist of the royal factory.

The growth of the factory may be traced in part in the differing styles of decoration, for while in its progress the factory has developed manufactures in the style of the day, it clings to its old-time models and turns out to-day some of the same forms that were admitted in the eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries.

One of the objects on exhibition is a cup and saucer like that which the Emperor of Germany uses, and there is a copy of the dinner service given by Emperor William to the Kaiser of Russia on his marriage. This wedding gift is in white and gold and royal purple.

Relief gilding and fine enamel decoration are almost specialties of the Berlin factory and this style of work is to be seen in many specimens of the china on exhibition and in the other articles. Some of the effects are very rich.

In the decoration known as "pays" are seen pieces which have exquisite cameo effects. Remote from this style is a set of ceramic cloisonné which is made by cutting away one glass, and then opening space with another of a different color and outlining the patterns so obtained in gold leaf put on after the firing.

There are also pieces of china of a splash, crackle and crystalline glazes, some of the latter with the effect of the iridescent interior of a tropical sea shell.

RIOT ON ELEVATED TRAIN.

Passengers Thought It Was Running Away—Broke Windows to Get Out.

Passengers on a downtown Sixth avenue elevated train which reached the shopping district about 6 o'clock last night had a severe shock when the train stopped. There was a blockade up the road and at every station from Forty-second street to Fourteenth there were crowds waiting to board the train. At Fourteenth street there was the largest crowd of all. Passengers who wanted to get off could not move, while those on the platform who wanted to get aboard had to fight their way past the gates.

When every car was packed, the guards began to yell.

Next stop, Franklin street. Then they pulled by and the train was chided by Fifth street station full of yelling. The train stopped at Franklin street and the passengers who were waiting to get on the train began to yell. The train started on and the passengers who were waiting to get on the train began to yell.

"Franklin street is not here," exclaimed many as they jumped from their seats. But they could not get with in reach of the doors. The train was packed and the passengers who were waiting to get on the train began to yell. The train started on and the passengers who were waiting to get on the train began to yell.

"Stop the train," yelled the men. "Stop it." "Pull the bell rope." Half a dozen hands went to the cord and it was yanked so hard that the guard who had hold of it was lifted off his feet.

"The train is running away," roared an Irishman with a bang. "I want to get off at Chambers street. Yank the rope, man!" Yank it!

But Chambers street went by on the run. Then the women began to scream. One of them dropped a hat box, which was trampled under foot. A small boy burst into tears because his hat had fallen off. Nearly every man who was standing took a pull at the bell rope. Rounding the curve to Park place the train was let loose.

"Let us off," was the general cry. "Let us off before the train runs away again." At Park place the first genuine stop was made and then pandemonium was let loose. Women were pushed about without regard for their bundles. Men fought with one another in the aisles. The train was broken, pulled the cord and the train hurried on.

J. D. SPRECKELS, JR. WEDS.

His Bride Is the Niece of H. E. Huntington.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 15. Miss Edith Huntington, daughter of Willard V. Huntington, and John D. Spreckels, Jr., son of the rich shipowner and owner of the Call were married this evening at the Palace Hotel. The bride is a niece of H. E. Huntington, who was the favorite nephew of the late Collis P. Huntington and inherited his estate.

$125,000 FOR SENEY HOSPITAL.

William Hall, Jr., Springs a Surprise at an Anniversary Dinner.

William Hall, Jr., vice-president of the Hanover Bank, took about 200 of the leading Methodist Church workers of Brooklyn by surprise last night at the crystal anniversary dinner of the Seney Hospital, held at the Montank Club. Mr. Hall is vice-president of the board of managers, and he was speaking to the toast "The Future of the Hospital" when he made this statement:

"If by June 1, 1903, the sum of $125,000 is raised by subscriptions, payable in a reasonable time after that date, to cover the building debt, the current expenses deficiency and provide, say $15,000 on account of 1903 expenses to obviate a deficiency that year and bring the endowment fund up to at least $50,000, my wife and I will complete the buildings and ground up to a cost of $125,000."

The speaker had been discussing how the buildings at Seventh avenue and Seventh street, two-thirds of which cannot be occupied because the interior is unfinished, will be completed.

Dr. A. S. Kavanaugh, the superintendent, said afterward that the $500,000 necessary to meet Mr. Hall's proposition would be forthcoming. Dr. S. P. Parke, Cadman, pastor of the Central Congregational Church, pledged his support, and by a rising vote Mr. Hall's offer was accepted. A concerted movement will be inaugurated among the Methodist Episcopal churches of Brooklyn, and Dr. F. M. North will endeavor to get some big subscriptions among wealthy Methodists in Manhattan.

Mr. Hall lives at Summit, N. J. He was born in Brooklyn and has for many years taken an active interest in the hospital.

GAVE UP $8.20 TO TEN MEN.

Retired Builder Has Alleged "Wire Tappers" Arrested.

Two men, who said they were John C. Vincent of 106 West 100th street and John Davis of 250 West Fifty-sixth street, were arrested by Detectives Wines, Woolridge and Brown in the Hotel Normandie cafe yesterday afternoon and locked up at Police Headquarters on the charge of swindling William B. Pettit, a retired builder, of 106 West Thirty-fourth street, by means of the well-known "wire-tapping" scheme for beating the races.

The specific charge against the prisoners is obtaining $1,000 from Pettit, although the detectives say that in all he parted with $2,500 before he appeared to the police. Vincent, according to the police, is known under several names and is said to be the man who long ago swindled a Columbus avenue schoolmaster out of $12,000 by a similar scheme.

On Nov. 30 Pettit saw an advertisement which said that a man with $10,000 could make a fortune in five days. He answered the advertisement and the following day, Vincent explained that he knew the manager of a telegraph exchange and could give him two wire-tappers every day.

The following day Pettit met Vincent in the Western Union Building, where he said he was introduced to him by a man in a shirt sleeves who said he had charge of the racing wires.

Pettit gave Vincent $100 to test the scheme, and the following day he handed him $2,500 and said that it was a sure thing, then gave Vincent $1,000 the next day. He told him that his horse had lost. The next day he gave Vincent $1,500, and the following day $1,750. Last time Vincent told him that his horse had gone wrong and his horse had lost.

In the meantime Vincent had introduced Pettit to Davis, who posed as a well-known bookmaker. On Saturday Pettit communicated with the Detective Bureau and the detectives told him to make arrangements to meet Vincent and Davis yesterday afternoon at the hotel. On Sunday Pettit and Pettit told him to have $5,000 ready for yesterday as they had a "real sure thing."

Pettit made the check, but Vincent and Davis were arrested before they got it.

SCRAP COACH MORLEY HAS IN.

Walter Who Got Hit Must Bring a Civil Action If He Wants Damages.

William R. Morley, the coach for the Columbia University football team, who is known to his friends as "Big Bill," appeared before Magistrate Zeller yesterday on a summons obtained by Charles Steinsky, a waiter employed in the restaurant on the upper grounds on the charge of assault.

Steinsky told the Magistrate that on Nov. 24 Morley and two friends came into the restaurant and ordered soup. The waiter told them that the soup was on the fire and would not be ready for a few minutes.

He said Morley knocked him down and kicked him so hard that he couldn't work for five days. Morley admitted that he had used the waiter a little roughly. He said he had offered to pay what he thought was fair to Steinsky.

Magistrate Zeller refused to entertain a charge against Morley saying the case was one for a civil court.

MRS. OSBORN TO TRY AGAIN?

Maybe She Will, Maybe She Won't, Says Her Press Agent. She Says She Will.

Mrs. Robert Osborn announced last night, through her press agent, that she was not going to be beaten even if she had discharged all of her present theatrical company and told the public that "Fad and Folly" would be withdrawn from the stage at the end of another week.

"It's a safe bet," added the press agent on his own account, that "Fad and Folly" hasn't made money for Mrs. Osborn. If it was a gold mine she wouldn't take it off the stage. But she got other plays in view and she just wants a breathing spell before deciding what to do next. The house may be closed for three or four nights or a week or two weeks. Then Mrs. Osborn may try "Capt. Careless" or some other play on her own account or she may submit the theatre to some manager. I wouldn't bet $100,000 that the house will be opened again at all after the close of "Fad and Folly," but on the other hand I wouldn't bet ten cents that it is to be closed for good.

THE GRANT MEMORIAL STATUE.

No Decision Reached on Designs Submitted by Mr. Shrader and Mr. Niehaus.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—The Grant Memorial Commission, consisting of Secretary Root, Gen. Grenville M. Dodge, Senator Wetmore and Col. Theodore A. Bingham, had a meeting today in the office of the Secretary of War to consider designs for the Grant statue submitted in competition by Mr. Shrader and Mr. Niehaus. No decision has been reached as to which design will be accepted. The recommendations of the advisory committee of artists that Mr. Niehaus and Mr. Shrader each submit an enlarged model of Grant have now been complied with, and it remains for the advisory committee to choose between the designs of these two artists.

It is contended by the friends of Mr. Niehaus that Mr. Shrader's design cannot be executed for $250,000, the limit of cost set by Congress. And that his intention to make up the difference out of his own pocket will be unfair. In the absence of any report from the advisory committee of artists the experts in today decided not to consider this question, but determined to urge the advisory committee to make its report as soon as possible.

CHINA ARRESTS FOREIGNERS.

HOLDS THEM WHILE EMPEROR PASSES THROUGH PEKIN.

"The Sun" Correspondent and a Party from the American Legation Among Those So Treated. Old Feeling of Hostility to Foreigners Resurges—Fear for the Safety of the Emperor.

Special Cable Dispatch to THE SUN.

PEKIN, Dec. 15.—The return of the Court today after a four months' stay at the Summer palace and after several postponements revealed several new features of the situation in China.

One of these was that the Empress Dowager is again apprehensive regarding the Emperor, who has been closely imprisoned in the Summer palace all the time and who was surrounded by an enormous guard on the route to Peking during the return journey.

In the second place, the return of the Court showed a different feeling on the part of high Government officials, officers surrounding the Court and members of the Grand Council toward foreigners. For the first time since the return of the Court from Siang-fu, after the Boxer troubles had been settled, foreigners who assembled along the route traversed by the Court on its homeward journey were ill-treated. Some were arrested, commanded to make obeisance to the Court before the natives and detained under a heavy military guard until the royal cavalcade had passed by.

An officer of the Foreign Board arrested the correspondent of THE SUN, and when a protest was made he said the authorities had issued orders that foreigners should be arrested. A party from the American Legation, which included two women, was also arrested.

It is understood that the Empress Dowager has been apprehensive for some time that the Emperor would escape or meet with some misadventure and that this feeling on her part is on the increase. The Foreign Office denies, however, that there has been any discussion as to the selection of a new heir-apparent.

Impartial observers declare that it is evident that the conditions of the Empire, which are better now than they have been since 1900, have greatly increased the boldness and confidence of the Government. The authorities are also resuming their past spirit of arrogance and hatred of foreigners.

WANT CUBAN RIOTERS PARDONED.

Veterans Who Ended the Strike Call on President Palma.

Special Cable Dispatch to THE SUN.

HAVANA, Dec. 15.—Gen. Maximo Gomez called a meeting today of those veterans who had intervened to settle the recent strike of the Cuban strikers. He asked the President Palma to pardon the strikers, who were arrested for rioting if the strike was ended. The President stated that the matter was in the hands of the courts, which were independent of the Government.

Guillermo Gomez denied that the courts were independent. The judiciary, he said, was not yet properly established in Cuba. He added that the strikers had reason to expect that the strikers would be pardoned, though no direct promise had been given.

A committee was appointed to visit President Palma to ask him to stop the proceedings against the strikers. It was decided that if the President refused the request the veterans would ask Congress to vote amnesty.

The committee visited President Palma this afternoon. It is understood that the President insisted upon the independence of the courts in the matter, while at the same time he listened to the views of the strikers and agreed to examine the case.

The Senate and House of Representatives have voted to take a recess from Dec. 20 to Jan. 12.

MAJOR GLENN ON TRIAL.

Old Charge of Killing Prisoners in Samar Is Revived.

Special Cable Dispatch to THE SUN.

MANILA, Dec. 15.—The court-martial of Major Glenn opened here today. The accused pleaded not guilty to the charge of wilfully and unlawfully killing seven prisoners of war in Samar and of violating the sixty-second article of war. The specification charges that Major Glenn ordered Lieut. Caulfield to kill the prisoners by stabbing them with bayonets and shooting.

Majors Waltz and Dodds, counsel for Major Glenn, demurred to the jurisdiction of the court, and denied its right to try the accused for a capital offense in time of peace. The demurrer was overruled. The court announced that Major Glenn was not charged with murder, but merely with conduct prejudicial to discipline. The court approved the summoning of all witnesses, including four who are now in the United States.

INTERNATIONAL BANK TALK.

National City Denies Any Deal With Anglo-Foreign Institution.

Special Cable Dispatch to THE SUN.

LONDON, Dec. 15.—The Evening Standard's City editor says there is considerable interest in banking circles over a report that the National City Bank of New York has entered into a working agreement with the Anglo-Foreign Banking Company of London. Inquiries in various quarters tend to confirm the report, and although the details are not yet known it seems likely that the scheme will be carried out.

If it goes through it will involve the doubling of the capital of the Anglo-Foreign Banking Company. It is stated that the extra capital will be put down by the foreign group concerned at the rate of £10 for £5 shares of the Anglo-Foreign Company.

It is also stated that other continental banks are interested in the plan. One German bank is interested to the extent of 20 per cent. of the new capital.

ROBERTSON AS "OTHELLO."

Audience Likes His Performance, but Critics Differ.

Special Cable Dispatch to THE SUN. LONDON, Dec. 15. Forbes Robertson produced "Othello" at the Lyric Theatre to-night. His performance was received with enthusiasm by a crowded house, the applause having been seldom if ever equalled on a similar occasion.

Miss Gertrude Elliott's Desdemona was charming and effective.

The critics differ in their opinions of Mr. Robertson's impersonation. While some share the audience's enthusiasm, others say in effect that it was a fine performance, but it was not Othello. Lacking the physical volume of brute force to portray the passionate Moor, Mr. Robertson gave instead a lithe, wily Othello.

KRUPP LABEL SUIT DROPPED.

Widow Thinks Gunmaker's Honor Has Been Vindicated.

Special Cable Dispatch to THE SUN.

BERLIN, Dec. 15.—The action of the Government against the Socialist newspaper Vorwarts for the alleged libel printed in that newspaper shortly before the death of Herr Krupp, the great armorer, was dropped at the request of Frau Krupp, who considers that her husband's honor has been sufficiently vindicated. The Vorwarts printed a story to the effect that Herr Krupp had been guilty of immoral practices at his villa on the island of Capri. The gunmaker died suddenly a few days after the publication and it was said that the aspersions on his honor killed him.

DEFINES $1,500 A WEEK.

Mrs. Potter Said to Have Received That Offer From Hammerstein to Play Here.

Special Cable Dispatch to THE SUN.

LONDON, Dec. 15.—According to the Morning Leader, Mrs. Janette Potter has just refused the record salary of $1500 weekly, offered by Oscar Hammerstein, to create the part of Macbeth in Tolstoy's "Resurrection" at the Victoria Theatre, New York.

Mrs. Potter had already made a contract for an eight weeks' tour of the United Kingdom, giving a novel entertainment consisting of recitations with musical accompaniment.

POLICE TRIALS ADJOURNED.

Cases of Grant and Stephenson Till Dec. 22; Halpin's Till Dec. 10.

Inspector Donald Grant and Capt. Stephenson, who were charged with guilt when their cases were called before Deputy Commissioner Ebbett yesterday, Col. "Al" Gruber appeared for ex-Judge W. M. K. O'Leary, who is to represent Grant and Stephenson. Ex-Judge Leslie W. Russell acted as counsel for Halpin.

Adjournments were asked for in all the cases and it seemed to be the desire of the defendants to have their trials postponed so far that it might be necessary to leave them to the new Commissioner.

Major Elstein said that he wanted the case dismissed before Jan. 1, if possible, as he might not remain in office after that date.

RAIDED A CRAP GAME.

Twenty-five Men Were Shooting in a Barn When the Police Arrived.

A crap game in a barn at Van Alst avenue and Sixth street, Long Island City, was raided yesterday by Detectives Roidy and Michaels and nine policemen. They arrested five of the twenty-five men in the place.

The men were arrested before Magistrate Smith and Capt. Stephenson. They were charged with playing a crap game in a barn at Van Alst avenue and Sixth street, Long Island City, and with harboring the same.

Special Jury for Ex-Apt. Moyalhan. Justice Davy has granted the District Attorney's motion for a special panel of taxmen from which to select a jury for the trial of ex-Police Captain Moyalhan, which is to begin on Friday in the criminal branch of the Supreme Court.
